VACATING VALUABLE SITE

CATHOLIC CHURCH

REMOVES AND ENLARGES

IN NEAR FUTURE

The Ocean Beach Catholic Church will be removed between Easter time and the first of May to the large plot of property recently acquired on DeFoe street and Saratoga avenue. The building will be considerably enlarged and new pews and furnishings will be installed. Complete details of the improvements will be published in these columns.

Special attention is called to an advertisement under "Classified" announcing the present property for sale, possession being given after the removal of the church early in May. The property is particularly desirable, being located on the corner of Santa Monica avenue and DeFoe street, in the center of the beach residential district, and the price is understood to be exceptionally reasonable.

SHOOTING RANGE

FOR COLLIER PARK

UNDER CONSIDERATION

It is announced that if a rifle and revolver range is to be established in Collier park, on Point Loma, or at any other location on the Point, the city councilmen wish to be assured that residents will not be endangered, and that there will be no legitimate grounds for objection to such an institution by property owners.

The council has appointed Chief of Police Patrick and City Manager Rhodes a committee of two to look over the proposed site and to report to the council at its next meeting with recommendations.

It will do your EYES good to see CASSTEN, Rooms 16-17, Sefton Bldg., Fifth and C. Phone 644-27.

"HANSEL AND GRETEL"

MATINEE TOMORROW

At 2:15 p. m. tomorrow (Saturday) an extra performance of the opera "Hansel and Gretel" will be given at the Spreckels theatre. This production, given by Community Service, proved such a musical treat for adults and at the same time such a delight to the children that over five hundred were turned away from each of the last two performances and so the extra matinee will be given. Seats may be reserved at prices ranging from 25c to $1.50.

The committee states that they are depending on this production for profits, which will be expended for music in the schools, to be supervised by a committee headed by Miss Annie Marie Clarke, director of music in the elementary schools.

"MOTHER'S HOME KITCHEN"

ON ABBOTT STREET

Mrs. A. H. Haines, formerly a well and favorably known resident of Oceanside, has just opened an up-to-date restaurant and lunch room at 1953 Abbott street, opposite the Merry-Go-Round. It bears the catchy name of "Mother's Home Kitchen" and the service well justifies the title. Dinners are served from noon to eight o'clock in the evening at the popular price of fifty cents per person, and a specialty is made of short orders. Regular boarders are particularly desired.

REJUVENATED OLD MARRIED

MEN BEAT YOUNG OCEAN

HE-FLAPPERS

By "Doc" Kraft

Secretly taking a course of Tan-lac, Glandogen, goat and monkey glands, and then waiting for the opportune moment to strut their stuff, the married men's baseball team lost no time in accepting the challenge extended them by the Ocean Beach He-Flappers and Stacom artists, last Sunday afternoon, and leaving them on the short end of a score of 4 to 3.

With the invincible Cliff Owens on the mound for the married men, the He-Flappers had a hard time of it, only collecting three hits, while the married men touched Terry for a total of 7. The game was very well played, only two errors being made by both sides. The feature of the game was, Harris trying to steal home, and Osborne's shoe string catch of a line drive into deep center.

Batteries—Flappers: Terry and Harris; Married Men: Owens and Rubber Glove Hawkins. Umpire, Mr. Moore.

ON THE SIDE LINES

Here's the official line-up: Married Men: "Gob" Holder, "Doc" Kraft, "Chick" Evans, "Cliff" Owens, "Shorty" Shaffer, "Roy" Hawkins, "Bridegroom" Stertz, "Lumber" Isom, "Pop" Osborne. Single Men: Geo. Northern, S. D. & A. Fatty, H. Harris, Dave Lewis, Clarence Early, M. Marvin, W. Harper, Billy Terry and Kid Johnson.

That three bagger that Evans slammed out, not only broke the ice on scoring but also the hearts of the flappers.

F. H. Kraft, proprietor of the O. B. Pharmacy, reports a heavy sale on Sloan's liniment this week.

Clyde Sharkey acted as manager of the Flappers and Cliff Owens directed the benedictions.

San Diego, Calif., March 11, 1924.

Mr. Kirk Smith, Editor The Beach News.

Dear Mr. Smith—Perhaps you will be interested to learn that since you purchased your Sedan, several other residents of the Pt. Loma peninsula have also purchased Chevrolet cars from us.

Mr. J. Fitzpatrick of 4886 Lotus St., purchased a Utility Coupe. Mr. B. Snyder, of U. S. Coaling Station, purchased a Touring car. Mr. P. J. H. Myers of 3238 Trumbolt, purchased a Sedan.

Mr. Edw. Cressell, of 4886 W. Pt. Loma Blvd., purchased a Touring car.

In addition to the above we have also disposed of several used cars.

IT IS DIFFICULT TO TRACE DIRECTLY THE RESULTS OF ADVERTISING AND PUBLICITY, BUT WITHOUT QUESTION, THE ADVERTISING AND PUBLICITY WHICH APPEARED IN "THE BEACH NEWS" AIDED MATERIALLY IN CLOSING SOME OF THE ABOVE SALES.

Last Friday we received a new four-passenger Chevrolet Coupe, one of the first delivered on the Pacific Coast. Over the week-end it received much favorable comment. We would like very much to have you and Mrs. Smith drop in and inspect it.

With kindest regards to you both, we are, yours truly,

GREAT GRECIAN PRODUCTION BY KATHERINE TINGLEY

"THE EUMENIDES"

PEARL OF ANCIENT DRAMA

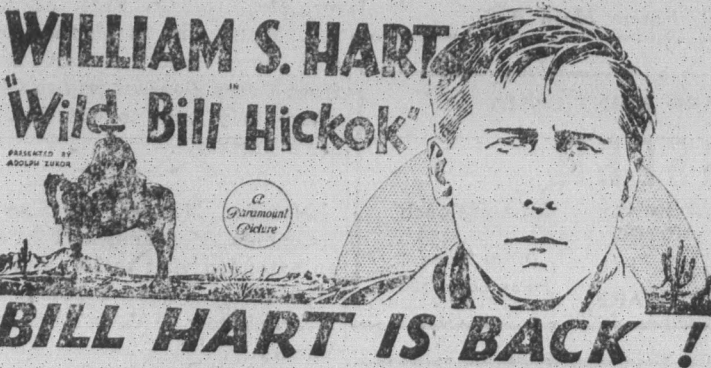

"Though twenty-three centuries old, it is as living today as when Aeschylus wrote it," says Kenneth Morris, the noted Welsh poet and professor of English Literature at the Theosophical University, speaking of "The Eumenides," to be produced by the Raja-Yoga Players in the Greek Theatre at Point Loma on Saturday evening, March 15, at 8:15 o'clock, under Katherine Tingley's personal direction.

"Its antiquity," he continues, "gave it, indeed, a certain quality not to be found in modern plays. One felt as one watched it, lifted out of the petty and sordid elements of daily life, and brought into a world of realities, face to face with the facts of the inner life. One seemed taken up out of the trivialities of the world into a place where momentous events succeeded each other, cause followed by effect, from the restless and haunting terror of the dread Ministers of Remorse that haunt Orestes, to the incoming—dramatic moment—of the shining figure of Athens, and at last, when her magical wisdom changes the furies into messengers of beautiful omen, to the peace that passeth all understanding."

Written by Aeschylus, "the Father of Greek Tragedy" at Athens in the year 458 B. C. during the "Golden Age of Attic Literature," "The Eumenides" is the third of what is known as the Orestian Trilogy, the first being "Agamemnon" and the second "The Libation-Bearers"—the only trilogy from the ancient stage of which all the parts have come down to us.

Among the interesting features of the play as it will be presented under Katherine Tingley's direction in the Greek Theatre tomorrow (Saturday) evening, is the dance of the Greek maidens, an archaic figure of exquisite beauty which was first introduced to the public by Katherine Tingley in her revival of "The Eumenides" in Buffalo, New York, in the year 1898. Another feature introduced by her at that time and reproduced here will be the "Hymn to Apollo" with the original Greek music and text (in English translation) dating from about the fourth century B. C.

Tickets are on sale at the Theosophical Bookstore from 9:30 a. m. to 8:30 p. m., 1123 Fourth street, San Diego; phone Main 2166. For public transportation take O. B. car to Chatsworth station. Busses from there to theater entrance and return without additional fare, through courtesy of Mr. Claus Spreckels.

OCEAN THEATRE BOOKINGS

After an absence of two years, William S. Hart is back in the greatest picture of his career, called "Wild Bill Hickok," which will be the mid-week feature at the Ocean Theatre next Wednesday and Thursday. For tomorrow night (Saturday) Manager Ray Ericsson has booked "Red Lights" with an all-star cast including Marie Provost, Alice Lake and Johnny Walker. Sunday's big bill will be "Silent Partner," with another thrilling round of "Fighting Blood," with news and comedy added.

"SATANIC MUSIC"

BY FELINE FAMILY

NIGHTLY NUISANCE

Editor "The Beach News."

Dear Sir:—I was very glad to read the letter written by "Cats and Dogs" in your last issue. I know a good many people who would be pleased to know of some remedy for such an unnecessary evil. To license them certainly offers a solution in part. If cats were licensed and tagged, and all untaged ones destroyed, we could enjoy our night's rest a little better, and not suffer so much loss in our poultry yards. Two nights ago the writer had to get up and drive away some cats which were making the night hideous with their "music," and scaring the children out of their wits. Now I am very fond of music, but feline "music" is absolutely "Satanic," and you will agree with me that things "Satanic" should be eliminated as far as possible. Domestic pets are a great pleasure to many, but one should be careful that they are not a nuisance to others. With thanks.

PEACEFUL NIGHT.

KEEP 'EM HOME

AND LICENSE CATS

AS WELL AS DOGS

Editor "The Beach News."

Dear Sir:—I heartily endorse the suggestion of the writer in last week's "Beach News" that cats as well as dogs be licensed and kept at home! It is a well known fact that even the most exemplary cat (at home!) is often the most cruel and destructive in their midnight prowls away from home! No amount of petting or feeding can change a cat's nature which is to catch and to kill!

What can a cat give us in return for the beautiful birds and their song, or the useful service the birds render us in destroying such multitudes of slugs and harmful worms and bugs! Personally, I have suffered the loss of a good many dollars worth of young chicks and spent many sleepless nights guarding my poultry from so-called "household pets" but which when allowed to run at large resolve themselves into neighborhood pests. So I am in favor of fairness to all. A dog or a cat worth keeping should be worth keeping at home and spending $1.00 on for the privilege of owning.

Yours for FAIR PLAY.

Burkhardt is constructing a thoroughly modern cottage, the interior containing a number of innovations in the way of sanitary kitchen and bathroom conveniences. Daddy's Evening Fairy Tale

by MARY GRAHAM BONNER

THE CIRCUS PARADE

"The Parade is Coming."

how beautiful they were! They were so big and they looked out of their small eyes as though to say:

"Bring peanuts when you come to see us. We've got good appetites. And why shouldn't we have when you look at how enormous we are!"

"We've seen people—not big as we are—eat a great, great meal, and small people, too! Well, just think then about us and our size and our appetites!"

Then came the camels and ladies rode upon the camels. The camels did not look to the right, nor to the left, except when some one rode by on a motorcycle the camels moved their bodies sideways as though to say:

"Where we came from they didn't have queer, noisy things like that!"

"We wouldn't like anything of the sort. Fancy us lowering our dignity by riding on such a thing."

"That's all right for people, but not for camels."

The sun shone down upon the parade and every costume seemed to dazzle and sparkle in the bright light.

Clowns rode upon some of the high wagons and looked down and made funny remarks as they went by.

And one of them winked at a little boy named George and said:

"My name is George; what is yours?"

"Mine is George, too!" the boy shouted back.

And the clown made a great bow and the people saw all this, and many of the circus people saw it, too, which made it very exciting and nice.

Wasn't that a pleasant thing to have happen?

The ponies were so cunning and some very little people rode upon them.

There were several enormous lions who rode in cages and who looked out at the people as though to say:

"Admire us if you like. We don't mind, but neither will it thrill us."

"With our great lion dignity we will not make a fuss so as to gain your praise."

Such a parade as it was! And it spoke well for the circus to be held that afternoon.

Oh yes, in the afternoon there would be the circus and in the evening, too.

And all those who watched the parade said to each other:

"Are you going to the circus?"

"Of course! Are you?"

"Of course!"

"Of course!"

DESIGN

by Grace E. Hall

Two men strolled in a wood one morn in May,
The light of sunrise filtered through the trees
In glints of gold, fair promise of the day;
The air was music-laden: birds and bees
And things that crawl and creatures of the wood
Awoke and stirred; the pulse of life was strong—
And one man viewed the scene and called it good,
And caught the harmony of sound and song;
Another questioned why a plan so fair
Should tolerate man's misery everywhere.

They paused to pluck a bud, and tier on tier
The folded petals fitted in the cone;
They halted by the brook where, swift and clear,
The ripples sang in unison of tone;
They felt the spongy sod beneath their feet,
And noted that the grass was patterned, too;
They watched a winged flight, accurate and fleet,
Heard call and answer all the forest through;
And one man walked serene and unafraid—
The other railed at errors men have made.

And he who carped was of a faith accepted,
While he who merely trusted had no creed;
The one had pondered long—and then rejected;
The other grasped a cult to meet his need;
They left the woodland, each with thoughts swift-teeming,
As Dawn, a-blush, swooned in the arms of Day,
The creedless one, his eyes with trust bright beaming:
"I am Design," he said, and turned away.
(Ah, splendid faith that sees one perfect plan!
No better creed is given any man.)

OVERDOING "INVESTIGATION"

BY THE GOVERNMENT

Another investigation of gasoline
prices is to take place.One result of these "investigations" is to intimidate the oil prospector, thus causing reduced oil production which automatically causes a shortage of petroleum products with increased prices to consumers.What a wonderful thing it would be for the taxpayers if an honest-to-goodness business investigation, free from the hampering strings of politics could be carried on in every department of the government.It is probable that such an investigation, if the investigators had the power to hire and fire as occasion demanded, would result in immense savings to the taxpayers.

MORE MILES PER DOLLAR

ON PAVED ROADWAYS

Marion county in Oregon has a fine system of utilizing its old well-packed gravel roads that saves the taxpayers large sums of money. Instead of tearing up the old base merely to widen the road a few inches, or making an entirely new road in order to eliminate a few degrees in a curve, the county utilizes well-packed, old foundations as base for an asphaltic concrete pavement.In this way outlying sections secure roads which it would otherwise be impossible to build due to excessive cost. These roads seem to accommodate very satisfactorily the farm trucking and private automobile traffic which is supposed to go over them.The asphaltic concrete adjusts itself to any slight irregularities in the road, without breaks or cracks, thus assuring a smooth and unobstructed surface.Please mention The Beach News

WRITES LOG ON GAS POISON AS HE AWAITS END

Would-Be Suicide Describes His Sensations Until He Loses Consciousness.

New York.—After turning on the gas and opening a window so that the spreading fumes would not poison his landlady, Donald Rose, fifty-nine years old, of 380 East One Hundred Sixty-sixth street, the Bronx, wrote a running account of his approaching death. The escaping gas aroused other roomers, who found Rose unconscious on his bed, and Rev. Anthony Barone, fifty years old, chaplain of St. Ursuline academy, One Hundred Sixty-fifth street and Grand concourse, the Bronx, overcame in his room directly above. Rose was taken to Lincoln hospital in a serious condition, but will recover, while Father Barone was able to remain at home after being attended by Doctor Goddick.

The note, written in pencil, evidently began as soon as he turned on the gas about twenty minutes after midnight. Addressed to his son, Don, it read in part:

"If this comes off it is the best that can happen under the circumstances. You would rather see me dead than living. Forget and forgive. I am sorry. I cannot work any more, so better dead. Farewell all. I have not written to mother (Rose meant his wife, his landlady, Mrs. Clare Schallus, said, who is in Scotland). I wish I had gone home. Too late now. I am extremely reluctant to make the attempt. Don, nothing reflects on you. It is entirely myself. I am not steady any more. Cheer up and forget me and may you and Ethel enjoy a long life."

Then Rose began to record his sensations, noting the time as follows: "12:20—I begin to feel it. 12:30—(Good-by was indistinctly written); my thoughts are all of my old home. 12:40—I opened the window. I did not want to harm Mrs. Schallus. My thoughts are still at home. 12:50—My ears are ringing."

There were blanks to be filled for one o'clock and intervals thereafter, but the writing was nothing but a scrawl and entirely illegible.

Give Medal to Captain of Rat-Killing Team

Albany, Ore.—The annual war on rodents in the Ash Swale district netted a total of 3,653 pests and settled a controversy of three years' standing as to the most efficient hunter of rodents in the community. A gold medal was presented to Charles Bowers, captain of one of the hunting teams, for three winning the honors in the annual shoot. His brother, E. S. Bowers, captained the opposing team and turned in the next high score.

Farmer Hangs by Hand From Top of Windmill

Highland, Wis.—Lawrence Esser, farmer residing near here, met with painful injuries to his right hand while going through a harrowing experience at the same time. He mounted a windmill to oil the gearing. His right hand was caught in the cogs and hung suspended for several moments.

It was 60 feet from the frozen ground. The unfortunate man succeeded in tearing his hand free of the machinery.

Praised for Wrecking Train

Punxsutawney, Pa.—Louis Flick, a Bessemer, Rochester & Pittsburgh railroad engineer, was commended by road officials for wrecking five freight cars at Indiana. Flick reported that he caused the cars to buckle by applying the brakes suddenly, in order to save the life of an aged woman who was walking along the ties.

"And do you think," queried Jim, "that my abandonment of the things in which I believe in the face of this attack would prove to your mind that I am competent? Or would it show me incompetent?"

Jennie was silent.

"I guess," said Jim, "that we'll have to stand or fall on things as they are."

Jennie had drawn on her gloves, and stood ready for departure.

"Unless you resign before the twenty-fifth," said she, "I shall hear

"Unless You Resign I Shall Hear the Petition for Your Removal."

the petition for your removal on that date. I bid you good evening!"

"Incompetency!" The disgraceful word, representing everything he had always despised, rang through Jim's mind as he walked home. He could think of nothing else as he sat at the simple supper which he could scarcely taste. Incompetent! He was incompetent. He picked up a pen, and began writing. He wrote, "To the Honorable the Board of Education of the Independent District of."

And he heard a tap at the door. His mother admitted Colonel Woodruff.

"Good evening, Colonel," said Jim.

"Take a chair, won't you?"

"No," replied the colonel. "I thought I'd see if you and the boys at the schoolhouse can't tell me something about the smut in my wheat. I heard you were going to work on that tonight."

"I had forgotten!" said Jim.

"I wondered if you hadn't," said the colonel, "and so I came by for you. I was waiting up the road. Come on, and ride up with me."

The colonel had always been friendly, but there was a new note in his manner tonight. He was almost deferential. He worked with the class on the problem of smut. He offered to aid the boys in every possible way in their campaign against scab in potatoes. He suggested some tests which would show the real value of the treatment. The boys were in a glow of pride at this co-operation with Colonel Woodruff. This was real work! Jim and the colonel went away together. It had been a great evening.

"Jim," said the colonel, "can these kids spell?"

"I think," said Jim, "that they can outspell any school about here."

"Good," said the colonel. "How are they about arithmetic and the other branches? Have you sort of kept them up to the course of study?"

"I have carried them in a course parallel to the textbooks," said Jim, "and covering the same ground. But it has been vocational work, you know—related to life."

"Well," said the colonel, "if I were you, I'd put them over a rapid review of the textbooks for a few days—say between now and the twenty-fifth."

"What for?"

"Oh, nothing—just to please me. . . . And say, Jim, I glanced over a communication you have started to the more or less Honorable Board of Education."

"Yes?"

"Well, don't finish it. . . . And say, Jim, I think I'll give myself the luxury of being a wild-eyed reformer for once."

"Yes," said Jim, dazed.

"And if you think, Jim, that you've got no friends, just remember that I'm for you."

"Thank you, Colonel."

"And we'll show them they're in a horse race."

"I don't see . . ." said Jim.

"You're not supposed to see," said the colonel, "but you can bet that we'll be with them at the finish; and, by thunder! while they're getting a full meal, we'll get at least a lunch. See?"

"But Jennie says," began Jim.

"Don't tell me what she says," said the colonel. "She's acting according to her judgment, and her lights and other organs of perception, and I don't think it fits her father should try to influence her official conduct. But you go on and review them common branches, and keep your nerve. I haven't felt so much like a scrap since the day we stormed Lookout mountain. I kinder like being a wild-eyed reformer, Jim."
